Yesterday the Shrine Luncheon Club of San Francisco featured the Kiku Matsuri at their regular weekly luncheon. The program was arranged by the Nippon Yousen Kaisha steamship company, and was attended by the Kiku Matsuri committee; by Kaname Wakasugi, consul general for Japan in San Francisco; Wallace Alexander, president of the Japan Society of America; H. K. Watanabe, president of the Japanese Chamber of Commerce of San Francisco; Thomas Cutting, president of the Redwood City Lions Club; Mayor Daniel R. Stafford of Redwood City and by various executives and officers of the peninsula organizations which are sponsoring the Kiku Matsuri.

The program at the luncheon included a half-hour concert by the 65-piece band of the Sequoia Union High School; demonstrations of Judo by U. Kuroye and I. Aoki; Kendo, sword fencing in armor, by K. Kato and G. Aoki; and Joe Mendell and his Lido Cafe orchestra; and the Lido Revu-ettes. The program and luncheon took place at the Palace hotel.

A parade had been arranged under the auspices of the Redwood City Lions Club. This consisted of a chrysanthemum float, beautifully decorated, and of a number of decorated cars containing the school band and others who attended the luncheon. This parade stopped at the city hall in San Francisco, where Mayor Rossi of San Francisco greeted Mayor Stafford of this city. Mayor Stafford extended an official invitation to the people of San Francisco to attend the Kiku Matsuri.

Following the luncheon, the parade crossed to Oakland, Berkeley, and Alameda, and returned by way of the San Mateo-Haywards bridge.

All during the week the town has been decorated with large bunches of chrysanthemums, set at conspicuous places, including in front of the court house, city hall, fire house, at the railway station and on the highway. These have been supplied and renewed by the Japanese flower growers of this section.

CONGRESSMAN FREE FORSEES FUTURE FOR PENINSULA DISTRICT

Blames Present Depression on Public Fear Of Future; Says East Has Come Out of Depressed Conditions

A bright prospect for California and particularly the San Francisco bay area was assured by Congressman Arthur M. Free in his talk given at the "prosperity luncheon" held Tuseday at El Casino, Emerald Lake, under the auspices of the Redwood City Chamber of Commerce.

"Within the next two years $34,805,000 will be spent by the federal government in the bay region in harbor development, air base construction and federal buildings," declared Free. "This will mean a total payroll of $10,000,000," he said.

Fear is largely responsible for the present depression, asserted Free. If people would only get away from this fear, he said, and begin buying normally ,the depression would soon end. He cited the case of the City of Washington, where some 60,000 federal employes are now effected by the laying off of men and women or the cutting of wages, yet conditions have been just as gloomy there as anywhere else in the United States, because people have been afraid of what might happn.

The East, said Congressman Free, was the first section of the United States to feel the business depression and has been the first to get back to normal. Mills in many of the large cities of the New England cities are again running full blast and the people of that section are prosperous and happy. It generally takes about six months for the reaction to reach the west, said Free.

Congressman Free defended the present tariff and declared that the United States should be more self-sustaining, citing the fact that this country consumes 96 per cent of its production.

County Clerk Elmore B. Hinman presided at the luncheon, which was attended by representative citizens from Redwood City, Menlo Park, San Carlos and Belmont.

SURVEY CONDUCTED OF GROWTH ON PENINSULA

San Mateo County's Bay Frontage Declared To Be Only Outlet for San Francisco To Grow and Develop

San Mateo county's growth in the last ten years, and the prospects it holds out to investors in real estate, particularly in the region between Redwood City and Palo, are shown in a striking manner in a survey just completed. This has been made for the David D. Bohannon organization by Guy Wilfred Hayler, the well-known city and regional planning engineer.

The survey points out that San Mateo county is the third smallest county of the state and with the exception of San Francisco county has a greater prospective value in real estate than any other county. The entire area of four hundred forty-seven square miles is definitely restricted in use by the rugged topography of the major portion of the county to the westward.

Only about twenty-two per cent of the area can ever be adapted for an intensive purpose and this is the lowland section fronting San Francisco Bay. There is about 62,900 acres to which may be eventually added some 30,000 acres possible of reclamation from the waters of the Bay.

The mountainous areas can be used for water reservations, park lands ,agriculture and scattered residences, but presumably a very small population can reasonably be expected to settle therein.

Thus it is that development has come to the eastern shoreline and here it must continue to come in any appreciable extent.

The available land is divided into city and industrial areas, about 59.7% and suburban residential territory, unincorporated, about 40.3% Twenty-five per cent or thereabouts of all available land of good character and fairly large in extent is now developed or occupied to an extent which places it generally outside present-day reckoning. Forty per cent of the present city areas are fully developed and about twenty-five per cent of the unincorporated territory.

Figures made some time ago showed seventy per cent of the city of Burlingame occupied and about forty per cent of Menlo Park. The large increases in population in the northern cities of the county which are naturally more restricted for possible expansion shows that the future drift of population must inevitably be farther to the south. This souhern drift of population is repeated also in the other sections of the bay region.

The congested population of the San Francisco area has limited opportunity for expansion all the way down the narrow neck of available peninsula land until the broad valley of Santa Clara is reacned. Here we are faced with valuable land devoted largely to fruit culture which for many years cannot be expected to change its character.

Judge Swart May Refuse to Leave Present Quarters

Stand of Judge Cause of New Worries to Supervisors' Housing Committee

The plan of the board of supervisors to provide extra space at the court house by having the old jail on Broadway remodeled for use of the county library, putting County Engineer James in the quarters vacated by the library, and remodeling James' office for use as a court room by Judge Franklin Swart, has met with a snag.

Judge Swart does not favor vacating the supervisors' room which he has been using as a court, and moving to the cramped quarters which the county engineer's office would supply. In fact Judge Swart intends to remain where he is, and the board of supervisors will have to find a new plan. The quarters offered for use as a second superior court are not adequate, according to Swart.

A former plan offered by the supervisors; removing the detention home to the old jail, remodeling the present detention home as offices for District Attorney Edmund Scott and Superintendent of Schools Pansy Jewett Abbott, and remodeling the two offices now held by these officers for use as a court room, was not adopted because of the strenuous opposition of Miss Abbott.

It was proposed by Judge Buck that the office of the county engineer be removed to the old jail building, but this met with strong opposition by James who declares that his office must be in touch with the other officers of the county at all times, and that being removed to so great a distance would work a great hardship upon his office.

BUCK FILES ANSWER TO TAAFFE'S MOTION FOR NEW FLOOD TRIAL

Jurist Sets Reasons for Allowing Directed Verdict in Famous Will Contest Case; New Trial Denied

The motion of Attorneys Taaffe and McNutt, representing Mrs. Constance May Gavin in her fight for a daughter's share of the James Flood fortune, for a new trial, was denied Wednesday by Judge Buck.

The motion for a new trial was made after Judge Buck directed the jury which had heard the case, to bring in a verdict in favor of the recognized Flood heirs and against Mrs. Gavin. Judge Buck's action started a riot in the courtroom and precipitated a scene wihotut parallel in the history of this couny.

After the motion for a new trial was filed, Mrs. Gavin's attorneys asked that Judge Buck be disqualified to sit upon the motion for a new trial. Judge Trabucco of Mariposa county was sent by the State Judicial Council to pass on this point, and decided that Judge Buck was qualified to pass upon the motion. Later the motion for a new trial was argued before Judge Buck.

Judge Buck's statement in denying the motion was as follows:

The above case was tried before this court and a jury commencing Monday, July 20th, 1931, and ending on Friday, August 7th, 1931, the court at that time directing the jury to return a verdict for the defendants. It is a most peculiar case and the prominence of the counsel engaged in it, the character of the evidence presented and the attack made upon the judge of this court requires me to briefly give my views upon this motion for a new trial. It would be a simple and perhaps the best method to simply deny the motion without comments were it not for the fact that the case for the petitioner is largely if not entirely made up by inferences and presumptions. Not a particle of evidence introduced in this case shows that James L. Flood was the father of the petitioner herein. In taking up this matter I shall to a limited extent refer to matters outside the record, the reasons for which will be readily seen. In the first place I owe an apology to the counsel upon both sides for this informal presentation of my views in this matter, especially when we consider the able manner this motion has been presented. Who are the parties to this action? The name of the father of James L. Flood was mentioned during the trial of this case and brings to my mind from the public press and records the magnificent gifts he made to the public during his lifetime. His will was filed in this court April 18th, 1889, a copy of which I have had in my book for more than forty years. The appraised value of his estate was $2,231,955.57 and his son, James L. Flood was appointed one of the executors thereof to serve such without bonds. So the petitioner herein is dealing in presumptions and inferences. I think we have a right to assume that the father had full faith in his son and in his business ability and we also have a right to assume that this son so managed the property he received from the estate of his father that it now is claimed by the petitioner herein to be of the value of $9,000,000. These facts taken with the fact that James L. Flood had as his associates among others such men as Judge Garber, Nat Messrs Col. Farley and many others show to me that James L. Flood was a man among men in a business and social way and the evidence placed before this court at this hearing shows his wonderful love and helpfulness for children and people living on his property, saying nothing about his great charities to others and to the public as shown in the public press and as shown by his will herein giving to the Roman Catholic Archbishop of San Francisco, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of California, San Francisco Protestant Orphanage Society, Maria Kip Orphanage, Pacific Hebrew Orphanage, Roman Catholic Orphanage Asylum, University of California, public institutions of all denominations and creeds in this state. Upon such a man the petitioner would seem to place the stamp of being worse than the beasts of the field as they do not desert their young. How does the petitioner in this case from the evidence presented measure up. She lives in Los Angeles county and never has lived in San Mateo county. She is about thirty-eight years of age and as appears from the evidence the first time she ever claimed James L. Flood as her father was in 1927, months after the death of James L. Flood. When she was in school in Los Angeles county she tried to ascertain something about her parents and among other things a letter was written to her by Mrs. Willett, admitted by both sides to be her mother, properly addressed, properly signed. Petitioner swore on the stand she had no recollection of the letter or of receiving the letter. She was at that time, the time the letter was received, a young lady. The good sister in charge of the school attended by the petitioner was placed on the stand and testified she got that letter, opened it, read it and gave it to the petitioner Constance May Gavin and this testimony stands uncontradicted. Then to coroborate this testimony of the sister, if coroboration were necessary, the chum of the petitioner in that school was placed on the stand and testified that she and the petitioner read that letter together and

District Attorney Renders Opinion On Jury Mileage

Scott Holds that Litigants Must Pay Mileage Fees Before Trial

District Attorney Edmund Scott this week rendered an opinion in which he holds that under the present law litgants must pay the mileage fees of jurors when asking a jury trial. The county clerk, he states, must collect these fees before the start of the trial.

The opinion of the district attorney was requested by County Clerk E. B. Hinman, and has been concurred in by both Judge Franklin Swart and Judge Buck.

The opinion given by Scott was as follows:

"Section 631 of the code of civil procedure provides that a jury trial is waived by failure of the parties to deposit with the clerk, promptly after the impanelment of the jury, a sum equal to the mileage or transporation if any be allowed by law) of the jury up to that time.

"Section 4244 of the political code commonly referred to as the San Mateo county government act, provides that trial jurors shall receive for each mile actually and necessarily travelled from their residence to the county seat, in going only, the sum of 20 cents per mile, which mileage shall be allowed but once during each session such jurors are required to attend.

"Although there might be some question as to what is meant by the word 'session' as used in this section, it is my opinion that the legislature intended to consider 'each case a session'; in other words, that the jurors would be paid mileage only once during each trial even though the trial should extend over a period of days.

"In my opinion the clerk should in accordance with Section 631 of the code of civil procedure, demand from the party desiring a jury promptly after the impanelment of the jury a sum equal to the mileage of the twelve persons impanelled as the jury, which said sum should be based upon the provisions of Section 4244 of the political code hereinabove referred to."

The Courthouse Problem

The board of supervisors of this county are confronted with a problem which no one but a magician could solve satisfactorily; providing office space where no office space exists. Whatever is done now will be of a temporary nature and may remove the pressing need; but it will not solve the problem, and ultimately the board of supervisors will have to make plans for a permanent solution.

The most obvious solution would be the enlargement of the present building or the construction of an annex. Either plan, we believe, would meet with the sanction of the people of the county. The talk of razing the present courthouse and building a new and larger one is foolishness.

In the first place the county has thousands of dollars invested in the present courthouse, and to destroy this building would mean that the people of the county would have to pay again for what they already have. In the second place, if this were attempted, it would only serve to open an opportunity for a renewal of the fight to remove the county seat, a fight which, though we may not realize it today, did at one time furnish plenty of trouble for Redwood City's citizens. A proposition to vote bonds for the removal of the present court house and the building of another would be followed by an offer of a tract of land free to the county on the condition that the courthouse would be located in another part of the county.

We had better hold onto what we have and enlarge the present courthouse. To do otherwise would be to invite trouble.

By Motor to the Arctic Circle

More talk about that Pacific Highway to Alaska makes one wish they would hurry it up. What a grand thing to slam the desk, jump into the car and roll up the coast all the way to Mount McKinley and the Arctic Circle!

The project seemed a dream when it was first mooted. Its outlines are now beginning to take more solid form. A joint United States-Canadian commission has been working on plans. On October 10 the reports and recommendations of its engineers are to be presented at a meeting in Victoria. Preliminary reports have been very encouraging.

A highway all the way from San Diego to Fairbanks really means comparatively little new construction. It is a case of joining up the existing roads. The engineers' preliminary studies reveal that this can be done on routes of easy grades and alignments, with all passes below 3000 feet.

On the 2000-mile stretch between Seattle and Fairbanks there are already 1250 miles of highway. One can drive now from Vancouver to Hazelton in British Columbia, which is as far north as Ketchikan in Alaska. At Hazelton begins the first gap to be filled. This is a link of 350 miles to Atlin and fifty miles more to Whitehorse, the famous station on the Klondike trail. From Whitehorse there is now a 100-mile road to Kluane lake. Thence a link of 150 miles is needed to reach the boundary between Alaska and the Yukon Territory. In Alaska 200 miles of new road will reach the present highway between Valdez and Fairbanks. At Fairbanks are already available 800 miles of good roads threading the surrounding country from Valdez on the south to Circle on the Yukon and the Arctic Circle.

The cost is not too great. The total sum estimated necessary to fill the existing gaps is about $11,250,000. This means approximately $5,250,000 as the British Columbia share and $3,000,000 each for the Yukon Territory and Alaska. Development bound to follow completion of the highway together with a vast tourist attraction seem to justify the expenditure.

What a road this will be, traversing the glories of California, Oregon, Washington, British Columbia, Yukon Territory and Alaska! A highway from the yucca mesas of San Diego to the spruce flats of the Yukon, from the beach at Coronado to the glaciers of Mount McKinley!

Could there be a highway anywhere else in the world which could rise to claim comparison with this? It does not seem possible. The globe does not seem to afford another equal opportunity for so great a stretch of such varied scenic grandeur.—S. F. Chronicle.

Keep Smiling

It is a big struggle for all of us—farmers, business men and professional men. But it doesn't help matters a bit to get down in the mouth about it. We have gone through these tough times before and will do so again. Let's keep a stiff upper lip. If we go down we might as well go down smiling. And if we keep on smiling we probably won't go down.

One thing we know, and that is that ultimate progress is to be measured by the ascent of man in the spiritual scale.—Frank K. Notch.

Air Lines Become An Industry

Twenty years ago Postmaster General Frank H. Hitchcock and Earle Ovington, a "flier," met on Long Island for the purpose of arranging a flight to carry the mail. Ovington got his plane, draped his lap with fifty pounds of United States mail—and he was off. When he had flown ten miles he dropped his precious mail overboard and the postmaster of Mineola gathered up the spill. The mail had been carried for the first time in airplane. Ovington still "flies the mail," and he and Hitchcock have just met again at Los Angeles, where they were the headliners in celebrating the twentieth anniversary of their Long Island experiment. Speaking at the time of the celebration Postmaster General Walter F. Brown told radio listeners over a nation-wide hook-up that the government is now spending millions of dollars annually on the air mail service. "Until about two years ago air mail contractors, with a few minor exceptions, carried neither passengers nor express," Mr. Brown said, but he added the information that the "support of this twentieth century industry" is developing "a nation-wide network of air lines to carry passengers, express and freight," with the mails "but an incidental operation."

The development of this "twentieth century industry" has been by leaps and bounds, and few people outside those in the industry and the "fans" have any realization of what has actually occured in developing the business for practical purposes as a new transportation unit which already has a net-work of lines covering every part of the United States.

The spectacular and daring feats of early adventure that made our hair stand on end served the useful purpose of demonstrating the possibilities of aeronautics, but "running the airways" has progressed to the position of a serious business, as one may readily understand by following the story of progress of the New York-Pacific Coast line. This route is completely lighted and equipped with lighted emergency fields every thirty miles, as well as weather bureau stations, directive radio beacons and radio telephone. This 2,760 mile airway leads the world in safety, and in superior equipment.

The United States Department of Commerce lighted emergency fields are every thirty miles apart, and there are revolving beacons (and blinkers in the mountains) every few miles, all the way between the Golden Gate and the Statue of Liberty.

The Editorial Circuit Rider

By MELVIN LORD

Mahatma Gandhi has been termed everything from India's "little brown saint" to a cynic "playing for publicity" as the result of his current trip to the London round table conference.

While California newspapers may differ slightly as to the proper title, editors generally recognize a true greatness in the colorful figure of loin cloth and shawl.

At least the state publications have taken a widespread interest in the Mahatma's activities.

"Whatever a person may think of Mahatma Gandhi, the scrawny little man of 71 years who is defying the British empire, all must be convinced of his sincerity of purpose and deep concern for the welfare of India," comments the Pomona Progress-Bulletin.

But The Santa Barbara Morning Press sees Gandhi in another light when it says that "Gandhi may have come to England with sincerity of purpose, but if he did he has not demonstrated it to the satisfaction of a doubting world. His demands did not bear the ring of the voice of a man who wanted peace and was willing to "give and take" in his negotiations with the mother country."

In commenting on these same demands The Los Angeles Evening Express believes Gandhi has "a consciousness of doubt of the wisdom of what he asked and knowing the history of India as he must, it would not be strange if he wondered if the grant of independence demanded would not result in disaster rather than a blessing to the millions for whom he spoke."

"The mahatma has no sleeves, but under his shawl he has effective cards in the way of discretion to make adjustments and concessions in the game which he is to play with British leaders. Gandhi is well aware that England, harassed by troubles at home, does not court more grief from her possessions across the sea," The Stockton Record believes.

"This is a practical world and there are many who regard the Indian leader as visionary and impractical. But with no other power than his own personality and adherence to human ideals he has gained prominence in world affairs that is the envy of all his contemporaries," says The Bakersfield Californian.

The Daily Siskiyou News takes Gandhi to task for his refusal to visit the United States because the country is not ripe for his message.

"The statement we are hopelessly commercialized has been parroted over half the world. To hear the mahatma repeat it is to suspect him of a lamentable lack of originality, at the least," The News believes.

But The Berkeley Daily Gazette admires Gandhi particularly because he is a living example of a person who finds contentment in a simple life as compared to most of us who "want everything" in the way of material things.

We all recognize the presence of a growing multitude of thoughtful people who are making larger and larger use of mental and spiritual forces for the gaining and maintenance of that sound health, that mental poise, that serenity of heart which make for well-being. This is the trend of modern life. The final forces are the spiritual forces and the only man who is in a position to bring all that good grist to his mill is the man who lives in the high mood of religious faith.—Charles Brown.

Constance is fleeing from her husband, THE COUNT DE BELLEFONTE, whom she married that morning.

She consented to marry him after a quarrel with HARRY EDMONDS, with whom she is desperately in love.

His letters begging her forgiveness are kept from her by her mother. She finds them immediately after her marriage. Realizing that she can never be the Count's wife, she takes passage for Europe at once. Harry is in England.

She begs Sheila to impersonate her in Paris for a few days, while she seeks Harry in London, to try to find a way out of her muddle.

Sheila, scenting adventure agrees. Constance gives Sheila her clothes and coaches her for the role she is to play. A first-class passenger.

TOMMY FITZGERALD, an old beau of Constance's, sees Sheila and hails her as Constance. Sheila tells him he has made a mistake.

At Southampton Constance leaves the ship as Sheila Allen, with all of Sheila's effects, including her passport.

At Harve, Fitzgerald sees Sheila with Constance's passport and she says she is the heiress, and explains the tourist passage as payment of a bet. A strange woman embraces her as an old friend.

There she receives a message from the Count, who is in Paris.

Harry Edmonds arrives in Paris. Sheila is panic-stricken. She wonders where Constance is.

To escape both Harry and the informs her aunt in Baden-Baden that her neice is ill. The aunt radios Mr. Kerr, who radios Sheila that he is coming to Paris.

She succeeds in convising Aunt Sophia that her presence is not required in Paris. A message from Mr. Kerr tells that the his yacht is disabled and that he cannot come to Paris for some time.

Harry urges her to marry him immediately. She puts him off.

The Baronne is angry, for she wants a clear field for her stepson, CARLO, whom she is anxious to marry off.

To keep Harry pacified, Sheila agrees to announcing their engagement shortly.

Harry denies this and the Count challenges him to a duel.

Sheila, in desperation, to prevent the duel, confesses that she is not Constance Kerr.

Thecount sends for Constance's aunt, styling that she will know her own niece. The old lady, on arriving, is not told what has happened, and she accepts Sheila without question.

The result is that the Count, Harry and the Baronne agree that Sheila is temporarily unbalanced.

Chapter No. 36—

Suddenly her memory returns.

She explains the entire situation to him later.

Chapter 51—

Dr. Mac Reaches Paris

Constance wept ....and twisted the copy of "Social Chatter" in her nervous fingers, while Dr. Mac looked at her in amazement.

"It's Harry," she sobbed, "and, by this time, he knows the whole story, and he'll hate me for the rest of his life. The Count has probably told everything. Oh, why did I ever do such an awful thing!"

Dr. Mac patted her hand soothingly. "Poor child," he said. "Please don't cry. . . . Now have you any idea where this picture was taken? If I knew that, I could find Sheila very quickly, I think."

Constance shook her head dolefully. It just says that these pictures of Miss Kerr and Mr. Edmonds, and the Count de Bellefonte were snapped at a popular Mediterranean resort," she said, dabbing at her eyes. "That might be anywhere along the coast."

"Like finding a needle in a haystack," said Dr. Mac. "Well, I'm off for Paris in two hours. I'll find her somehow."

Constance hid her face in her hands and wept afresh. "But what about Harry?" she cried. "He'll never forgive me."

Dr. Mac knelt before her chair. "When he hears your story, he will understand, I'm sure."

Constance looked at him wonderingly. "He's not patient and calm, as you are," she said. "He's peppery, and so am I. And we row dreadfully."

When Dr. Mac had gone having promised to keep in touch with her by telephone, she leaned back in her chair and closed her eyes and thought witsfully that Sheila Allen was a lucky girl to be loved by him. And Dr. Mac, winging through the clouds on his way to Paris, was filled with pity for the girl whose headstrong disposition had gotten her into such trouble. Then he forgot her in his anxiety over Sheila.

As the plane came to rest in Le Bourget and the passengers were discharged, Dr. Mac looked about and recalled again the many times that he had dreamed of the delights of foreign travel. Now that he was having a taste of it, his mind was so full of worry that he couldn't enjoy it.

He sent for a cab, and, in a few minutes, was speeding toward the Palace Hotel. The reckless pace of the driver did not disturb him, for he had only one thought — to find Sheila as quickly as possible and take her back to London, where Constance awaited them.

After what seemed to him an incredibly long time, the cab stopped before an impressive building and the doorman was helping him to alight. "Your, 'otel, M'sieu," the driver was saying.

Dr. Mac went in and asked for the manager. While he waited to be shown into the manager's office, he looked at the gorgeous furnishings and smiled at the thought of how Sheila must have delighted in these luxurious surroundings. If only he could find her soon and put an end to this intolerable anxiety!

Then the door of the manager's office opened and Dr. Mac was ushered in. He made his inquiry at once. It was received with a calm, unblinking stare. Miss Kerr? Oh, yes. The American lady had been a guest at the hotel. No, she was not here now. Where had she gone? That question brought forth a shrug. "M'sieu must know," said the manager blandly, "that information would be given only to a member of Miss Kerr's family, or to a person for whom she had left a message."

Dr. Mac began to realize that he was up against a stone wall. He argued and coaxed, but the manager was obdurate. Finally he left and walked about the streets, trying to collect his thoughts.

"I'll have to appeal to the police," he told himself. "There's no other way."

Having made this decision, he went to a hotel, registered, and sent for his luggage. It was now so late that he had to defer further action until morning, but, immediately after his early breakfast, he asked the clerk to direct him to police headquarters. The clerk looked curiously at him.

"I am trying to locate a friend who has disappeared," Dr. Mac explained. The clerk nodded. He turned and spoke in French to a page who stook beside him, and the boy took Dr. Mac to a cab and gave the driver an order. The cab turned and moved rapidly in the direction of the Seine. Soon Dr. Mac found himself in a great stone courtyard. The door of the cab was opened by a gendarme, and the driver said a few words and nodded toward Dr. Mac.

The gendarme motioned Dr. Mac to follow him and led the way into a cold, forbiddinglooking building, through a labyrinth of hallways, and finally stopped before a door that swung opened when he dropped the knocker.

Dr. Mac found himself standing before a police official who sat at a desk, surrounded by filing-cases. He peered at the doctor through thick eye-glasses. The gendarme explained the visitor's errand and left.

"I'm sorry that I cannot speak to you in French," Dr. Mac began, but the police official interrupted him to say, in perfect English. "That is not necessary. We speak all languages here."

Without any explanations that would bring Constance or Sheila into trouble for their lighthearted treatment of passport regulations, Dr. Mac produced a little snap-shot of Sheila that he always carried with him.

"This young lady was my ward," he said. "I believe she is in Paris, but it is so long since any of her friends have heard from her that we have grown anxious or her safety. Can you help me find her?"

"And the young lady's name?" asked the police official.

"Allen, Sheila Allen," said Dr. Mac, deciding that it would never do to mention Constance Kerr's name.

The Frenchmen turned and consulted a list that lay on his desk. Her name is not among those of persons reported missing," he said. Then he went to a filing-cabinet and took out several stacks of photographs and snap-shots. "Will you be good enough to examine these?" he said. "If you find your former ward's picture there, our task is an easy one."

For an hour Dr. Mac examined these pictures and others that were laid before him, but, at the end of that time, he shook his head.

"Then," said the official, "we must proceed in another way, and that will be more difficult and may take some time. I cannot say how long."

"It cost $7 a day to be an addict, the dope costing $2 per grain. Addicts make others addicts of their own mates, although no one wishes to become an addict. It takes from three to five years to cure anyone who has used drugs and then the chances are only one in a thousand. One-half to two-thirds of all addicts are made while under the age of 21 years. One half to nine-tenths of all crime is committed by drug addicts and ninety percent of all premeditated murders are committed by users of the drug.

The life of an addict is about 10 years and Japan is today the only nation not using drugs at all.

Peddlers frequent public dance halls, card parties and pool halls, usually using cocaine in plying their trade. The effect of this particular drug is very exhilarating at first. Heroin is one of the most deadly drugs, leaving the users absolutely without any conscience. The price of drugs is $16,000 per pound, $1.000 an ouncce and $30,000,000 per ton. Statistics show that $50,000,000 worth of dope are sold in California alone each year.

The Rockefeller Foundation has issued a book of 800,000 words on the drug traffic.

The use of drugs has proven to be a disease far worse than cancer or leporsy and more incurable."

The unemployment committee held its weekly meeting Friday evening last at the city hall. Chairman Hoss outlined a program that was unanimously accepted by those present. The many suggestions offered by the chairmen were well received. Mayor Weeden also spoke on the matter of caring for the itinerant's suggestion that the state and nation had thus far done nothing towards making provisions for this class of the unemployed. Mrs. Devol followed with some timely suggestions. It was agreed that the twenty-five gum trees on University Drive are to be cut down and the stumps removed for $2.50 a piece. It is estimated that the trees will contain 180 cords of wood, which when cut up will be sold to Edward Derry for $7.50 a cord It is planned to give the unemployed $5 a cord for cutting the wood into proper lengths. By this plan several men will be employed for weeks. The trees must come down as the street improvements are about to be started on that street, make it imperative.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon F. Douglass and Mr. and Mrs. Victor Eisner of Menlo Park are in New York, where they are staying at the Ambassador Hotel.

Rev. Father John F. Byrne, 52, pastor of St. Lawrence Catholic church, Oaklahoma, died last week at the rectory after an illness of over a year. Father Byrne was the assistant at the Church of the Nativity, when Father Lyons was the pastor in 1910.

Father Byrne had been at St. Lawrence Church for four years. San Francisco was his birthplace and his preliminary education was received at Sacred Heart College here and at St. Patrick's Seminary in Menlo Park.

In 1906 he became a reporter on the editorial staff of The Chronicle, leaving a year later to edit the Tidings, official newspaper of the Los Angeles diocese of the Catholic church. Hanna, now archbishop of San Francisco.

The matter of installing flash light signals at the Oak Grove avenue was taken up and discussed. A lengthy petition was read from the residents in the vicinity of the crossing, asking that the signals be not installed for the reason that the noise from the bells would be annoying and would work a hardship upon the business houses adjoining and would tend to decrease the value of property in the vicinity. On motion of Blake, seconded by Dale a resolution, prepared by the city attorney, was adopted requesting the railroad company not to install the signals, and asking that the present system be maintained. The clerk was instructed to send one of the resolutions to the company and another to the state railroad commission, which granted the request of the railroad company to put in the signal system.

The federal prohibition agents made a raid on illicit liquor houses outside of the city limits during the week, arresting a number of violators of the Volstead act.

Vina Delmar Best Seller Novel "Bad Girl" Picturized by Fox

"7th Heaven" Director, Frank Borzage, in Charge; Sally Eilers, James Dunn Romantic Leads

"Bad Girl," Vina Delmars profound study of motherhood as it affects a typical young couple of New York's working class, sensational best seller among recent novels of youth, and smash stage hit of the past season, has now reached the screen with Sally Eilers and James Dunn in the co-featured leads.

Frank Borzage, known as the master interpreter of pathos and human emotion, directed this Fox film production which will be the featured atre. Much of the emotional appeal of the film is said to be due to Borzage's aptitude for portraying the intense drama of life and love.

Briefly, the story deals with the romance of a young couple who loved too well before they were married. Sally Eilers, as the heroine, is shadowed with the stigma of being known as a "bad girl," whereupon her sweetheart, enacted in the film by James Dunn, agrees to marry her.

Sallys happiness at this prospect is dimmed by her brother's cruel treatment of her in forcing her to leave home, but it is soon renewed when she is married and settled in a comfortable little flat. Then the realization that a baby is coming brings conflict into their home.

Their worries, fears, and sometimes laughable experiences during this trying time in their lives make up the body of the drama which is rich in gripping, human interest qualities.

An admirable supporting cast surrounds the co-featured principals in this production which is said to have been most lavishly staged and produced. It includes Minna Gombell, Frank Darien, William Pawley, and many others.

Edwin Burke, author and dramatist of many past stage and screen successes, adapted "Bad Girl" in continuity and dialogue for the screen version. According to advance reports from cities where this film drama has played, it tells its story with absorbing interest.

HOLLYWOOD'S FILM SHOP

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 2 — (UP)—There may be something to this home talent movie contest business after all.

Ever since the flicker industry got its start in Hollywood theatres all over the country have staged contests in which he lucky girl or sometimes boy, was to gain fame as a movie star. Buddy Rogers, it is said, got the film bug in that manner back home in Olathe, Kan.

The craze apparently died down for a time, but it appears to have been revived by Warner Brothers. At any rate two 17-year-old girls, who won home town theatre contests, worked in Marilyn Miller's picture, "Her Majesty, Love," and are reported to have scored favorably with the executives.

The girls are Shirley Chambers and Geraldine Barten. Miss Barten lives in San Pedro, Los Angeles harbor town, while Miss Chambers lives in Huntington Park, a suburb to the south of Hollywood and Los Angeles.

Warner Brothers staged a "home talent movie" contest in both towns. Darryl Zanuck, head of production for the studio, viewed the films at a private showing and gave each girl a contract.

Although she declared she never would follow in the footsteps of her sisters, Lois Wilson and Diana Kane Fitzmaurice, and seek a movie career, Connie Wilson Lewis found the lure too strong and entered pictures. Her present role is a featured part in Torchy comedies, produced by C. C. Burr.

Odd Fellows to Take Gavel to Coastside

Bay View Lodge of Odd Fellows will visit members of Ocean View lodge at Halfmoon Bay tomorrow night when a delegation from here will take the traveling gavel to be delivered to the coastside lodge. The gavel was brought here by members of Bay City lodge of San Francisco, and will remain a month in each of the lodges of the county. When all lodges of the county have had the gavel, the one which has had the largest percentage of attendance during the time it was in its possession will have the honor of delivering it to the lodges of Santa Clara county.

It is the intention of the Odd Fellows to have the gavel go into every lodge of the state before it is again returned to San Francisco, where it originated.

Wake Up Your Liver Bile —Without Calomel

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931, C. M. Co.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK OCTOBER 4TH TO 10TH

Thoughtful people throughout the United States will again observe Fire Prevention Week, as suggested by the President in his annual proclamation.

This year October 4th ushers it in. Commercial, civic, social and other organizations will hold appropriate meetings. Millions of school children will take part.

You can make a definite contribution to Fire Prevention Week by increasing your efforts to safeguard your own home and business.

STOCK FIRE INSURANCE

has always been an active factor in Fire Prevention Week—through the National Board of Fire Underwriters and other organizations, and through its local agents in all states.

The purpose of Fire Prevention Week is not only to reduce the fire waste, but to save human lives. In doing that, further reductions in the average cost of insurance will be justified—a cost that has consistently declined for many years.

1931 Declared To Have Been Most Serious Fire Year in California

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 1—(UP) — In one of the most serious years in the history of California, forest fires burned over four times as much acreage as in 1930, the state department of natural resources reported today.

The figures, based only on reported fires in areas patroled by the state, reveal that there were 679,909.23 acres burned up to September 1 of this year as compared to 154,453.14 acres blackened by September 17, 1930.

Of the total area burned this season, 21,061 acres represented merchantable timber, 18,005 acres, production timber, and 15,733.25, potential timber acreage.

The remainder of the fires were classified as brush, 354,774.30 acres; grass, 268,894.46 acres, and grain, 1,440.72 acres.

The loss for the year to September 1 is estimated at $889,012.93 as compared to the $283,146.74 loss in 1930. The timber losses are placed at $121,410.59; range, $152,585.12; grain, standing and sacked, $86,314.25, and improvements $528,702.97.

In commenting on the huge increase in losses, officials of the state division of forestry pointed out that the season was much more severe than normal because of "highly inflamable weather conditions and the wide prevalence of incendiarism, due in the most part to unemployment."

The total number of fires this year was 2,595 in state areas, while the record for 1930 showed 1,621 blazes for a similar period.

Inasmuch as the statistics apply only to state patrolled areas, the entire loss for California as a whole may be several times the departmental figures.

The state summary does not include national forest fires or fires in districts such as Yolo, San Joaquin, Stanislaus, Merced, San Mateo and Glen counties which are not included in the co-operative agreement areas.

Since September 1 there have been a number of fires, particularly in Mendocino county, so that the totals of acreage burned and losses will show a substantial increase over the initial summary, state officials pointed out.

Birth Rate Drops During Hard Times

San Mateo County Is Not Affected by General Rate Decrease

By MELVIN LORD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Sept. 28 — (UP)—California apparently is not going to have a bumper "crop" this year.

During the first six months of the year there were 40,255 births in the state as compared to 41,726 for the same period during 1930, the state department of public health reported today.

While the state as a whole showed a decrease, 22 of the 58 counties recorded gains in births, the report revealed. Santa Clara county had the best record with a gain of 91, and Alameda was second with an increase of 75 births.

In San Mateo county 351 babies were born between January and June this year, while 1930 saw 333 births during the first six months of the year.

In an analysis of the statistics according to racial divisions, the report reveals that the "Negro, Indian and Chinese births show increases, while the births of white, Japanese and Mexican children decreased to account for the general loss throughout the state."

There were 31,133 white children born during the six months, 605 Negroes, 177 Indians, 390 Chinese, 1,093 Japanese, 6,)676 Mexicans and 181 children of other races.

While it is difficult to explain a decrease in births while the population is increasing, it has been shown that there are fewer children born during periods of economic stress than at so-called normal or prosperous times, it is claimed.

It is not anticipated that the report of the last six months of the year will be such that the number of births for the whole year will show an increase over the 1930 total.

Los Angeles county, with its huge population, was far ahead of other counties in the number of births with 15,450 reported during the period. San Francisco was second with 3,800 births. Alpine county held its own with last year's record—one birth.

EDITOR BUYS FISHING PARK

MONTROSE, Colo., (UP)—William Allen White, Kansas editor, probably will do his fishing hereafter in Colorado. With a group of Kansas associates he has purchased 160 acres of land in Child's Park above Lake City. The group plans to establish a fishing resort. Reports from Lake City revealed that White and his associates also had purchased a half block of ground and some old buildings in the old mining town. With this property, it was said, they will establish a park and fish pond.

PARIS STYLES

By MARY KNIGHT

PARIS, Oct. 2—(UP)—Tongues are wagging again—and if we want to show how smart we are we will keep a sharp tongue in our shoes. It has been a long time since we've worn tongued shoes, but they are here again and thoroughly in accord with the new styles. There will be an almost puritancial atmosphere to some of them—the ones that carry bright and shiny silver buckles over their bases and show about an inch of wider tongue at the top.

The new zippers for wet weather are being made with longer and wider tongues that come up over the top and turn down like a cuff. This gives ample opportunity to use two colors in rainy outfits, or even an extravagant three.

We are going through another season of reptile shoes adapted to the new modes, and there isn't a more practical one we could hope for. Reptile skins never show wear. They are inclined to absorb water, but they never lose their shape which more than makes up for that.

Suede and patent leather are also good, and for evening many new brocaded slippers and plain lames are being shown with notices that they can be made up to match any evening gown.

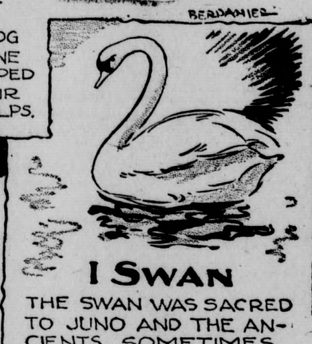
THE ANCIENTS THOUGHT THAT THE SPIRIT OF AN UNBURIED CORPSE COULD NOT REACH THE ELYSIAN FIELDS, BUT WANDERED AROUND DISCONSOLATE UNTIL SOMEONE PAID THE CUSTOMARY FUNERAL RITES. IT WAS THE PRACTICE OF EACH ATTENDANT TO THROW A HANDFUL OF EARTH ON THE GRAVE, AND WE STILL DO IT.



I SWAN

THE SWAN WAS SACRED TO JUNO AND THE ANCIENTS SOMETIMES SWORE BY JUNO'S SWANS. THIS CUSTOM FOUND ITS WAY INTO A MIDDLE ENGLISH EXPRESSION, "I SWANNY," MEANING "I SWEAR." SHORTENED TO "I SWAN" WE STILL HEAR IT.

Beavers Look For Fast Tilt With Trojans

By JAMES S. SHEEHY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

The fiercest clash of the 1931 Pacific coast conference football season may be the game between the University of Southern California and Oregon State College at the Los Angeles Coliseum, Saturday, October .

Fans in the Pacific Northwest are not clamering or wagering much that Oregon State will beat Southern California. But those who have followed Coach Paul Schissler's team realize the Beavers have a fine chance to spoil what appears to be a great season for Coach Howard Jones' men.

Oregon State has two big, fast lines that average close to 200 pounds. The first string includes E. Davis and K. Davis, ends; Schwammer and Kent, tackles; Cox and Bergerson, guards, and Hammer, center.

Oregon State rooters believe these huskies can withstand the softening up processes of Gus Shaver and prevent Orv Mohler, great Trojan ball carrier, from running wild in the second half.

In the backfield Oregon State has a great triple threater in Johnny Biancone, sophomore quarter. He can be as elusive as Mohler at times. Joslin, Moe, Rust and Head are fine backs and Frank Little, another Italian, is perhaps one of the hardest hitting fullbacks in the conference.

How will Oregon State stand the heat? In previous years the Beavers wilted. This year Coach Schissler has reserves — both line and backfield. He has capable kickers in Keith Davis, Biancone and Little.

Davis kicked five straight conversions after touchdowns in the 76 to 0 victory over Willamette University in a pre-season game.

Oregon State will be primed for the game and will have no inferiority complex. It may be the hardest afternoon on the very difficult schedule that confronts the men of Troy.

It seems that no team can survive a long chase for a baseball pennant without a disasterous slump. The second half of the hot coast league race proved it again.

Portland was riding high on the crest of real baseball when Johnny Monroe, second baseman, one of the finest all-round players in the league—was injured in bumping Pitcher Gibson of the Seals on a close play at first base. The Beavers slumped immediately. Injuries followed. Hale went out and Westling's wife became critically ill, necessitating his appearance at her bedside. Then Bill Shores was taken to St. Francis hospital in San Francisco with hemorrhages of the stomach.

The Missions took five out of seven and Seattle four out of seven from the crippled Beavers. It just about eliminated Spencer Abbott's fighting team.

The Seals couldn't get started in the first half and Hollywood has had its woes in the second. The slump gets 'em all—teams and individual players alike. Slumps are difficult to explain and equally difficult to shake off.

It will soon be time to pick an all-coast league baseball team. No harm or good in it. Here goes: Catchers: Brenzel, Missions; Cox, Seattle; Severeid and Bassler, Hollywood; Gibson, San Francisco; Thomas, Oakland; Herman, Los Angeles; Cole, Missions; Killeen, Portland. First base: Jim Keesey, San Francisco. Second base: Monroe, Portland. Shortstop: Corsetti, San Francisco. Third base: Hack, Sacramento. Outfielders: Coleman, Portland; Statz, Los Angeles; Hill, Hollywood; Eckhardt, Missions; Barbee, Hollywood. Utility: Burbaker, Oakland, and Haney, Los Angeles.

SPEAKING of SPORT

BY FRANK GETTY

Here's New Angle for Carnegie Foundationers

Harvard's football powers have placed a ban on cameras at Cambridge football games. The rule affects the amateur as well as the commercial photographer, including the movie man.

The reason for the ban is that the coaches fear rivals may study the exposures and thus gain too intimate a knowledge of Crimson formations.

Of course any school has the right to do as it pleases about such things but it would be difficult for the Harvard people to show that a rule such as this new one does not add "emphasis" to college football.

No matter what else in the way of tradition is evolved from the Army-Harvard football game to be played a couple of weeks hence,it's certain that the writers who report it will remember it as the contest of the big squeeze.

The game is to be played at Michie stadium at West Point and the seating capacity is somewhat less than that of the stadiums boasted by most major football teams. It's less by many tens of thousands. Both the Army A. A. and the Harvard A. A. are having a trying time in properly dividing the tickets for which of course, there is a tremendous demand.

Cappy Wells, publicity relations council at the Point, also has his hands full in supplying the demand for press seats. Now he comes out with the announcement that the seats and writing space occupied by football writers will be 18 inches in width.

Just mark off 18 inches on your desk and see how much elbow room you don't have. And while you're at it, measure the width of the area you require for seating purposes.

Cappy, who is fully capable of being facetious, suggested privately that "the experts may go on a diet as a result of this game and that, I believe you will admit, is a constructive move. I am informed that the telegraph companies are canvassing their operators so that they can assign men to this game who have retained their girlish figures."

Helen Moody Ranks First In New French Ratings

PARIS, Oct. 2—(UP)—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody was placed far in the lead as the world's greatest woman tennis player for 1931 by M. Pierre Gillou, French Lawn Tennis Federation president, in his annual ranking of the world's ten best players, following the conclusion of the American, British, French and German national championships.

America and British each have three, Germany has two and France and Switzerland each one among the first ten. The Gillou ranking is as follows:

1. Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, U. S.
2. Fraulein Cilly Aussem, Germany.
3. Miss Betty Nuthall, Great Britain.
4. Miss Helen Jacobs, U. S.
5. Fraulein Krawinkle, Germany.
6. Madame Simone Mathieu, France.
7. Mrs. Eileen Bennett Wittingstall, Great Britain.
8. Miss Phyllis Mudford, Great Britain.
9. Mlle. Payot, Switzerland.
10. Mrs. Lawrence A. Harper, U. S.

M. Gillou has failed to place Miss Elizabeth Ryan, doughty Californian who has been a star on French courts for a decade and was at one time the only woman in Europs who could give Suzanne Lenglen a battle. He also has dropped Miss Joan Ridley and the brilliant Belgian, Mlle. Sigart.

"Mrs. Wills Moody ranks at the top because of her remarkable comeback after a year of absence from the championships, defeating without the loss of a single set Miss Jacobs, Miss Nuthall, Miss Mudford and Mrs. Wittingstall," M. Gillou said in his report.

"The little German, Miss Aussem, must be ranked second, for she beat all of the stars except Mrs. Moody, whom she did not meet this season."

There are many tennis experts abroad who disagree with the ranking of Miss Betty Nuthall above Miss Helen Jacobs. The husky Californian worked her way into the Wimbledon semi-final against the other German, Fraulein Krawinkle and twice this season Miss Jacobs has beaten Miss Nuthall. Her worst showing was in the French championships when Betty took her only match of the year from Helen.

The best of a very mediocre lot. Mme. Mathieu is still the outstanding French star although far from the caliber of Suzanne Lenglen.

BATHING SUIT TOO LIGHT

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., —(UP)—The day was warm when Lee Blain, of Pueblo, started to climb Pike's Peak, dressed in a bathing suit. The climb was difficult, and Blain panted and perspired en route. He arrived at the top and nearly froze. The temperature was 10 degrees below freezing.

Sequoia Gridders to Meet Mountain View Today

Last Practice Game Before League Schedule To Be Played Today

Entering their final practice game today at 3:30 p. m., the Sequoia varsity fotball team will compare tatics with the Mountain View gridders on the Mountain View turf.

After a defeat suffered at the hands of the Menlo high eleven, Cherokees are out to win back their lost wreaths. Whether or not the Mountain View varsity will balk at the Indian policies will be shown today at the game.

Sequoia rooters will base much hope on the action of the Cherokee line, as seen in previous tilts, the forward wall consistently held up under the assault of its opponents, and consistently opened wide holes in the adversary's line for the Cherokee ball carriers to crash through.

As proved in the Cherokee-Acorn conclave, backfield defense on passing is one of the weakest features on the Purple eleven, the only Cherokee tally to be made being scored on a 30-yard pass completed by a Menlo man on the Indian team's final marker.

The first league game is scheduled for October 9, when Sequoia unlimited gridders will contest the Burlingame eleven in what might turn out to be the tilt meet. Both teams a present have proved far more powerful than any of their other league rivals. The Panthers, whose victories were scored over stronger teams than those met by Sequoia, are favored to win this tussle.

Dogs Take Huge Deer Toll

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., —(UP)—A four point, white-tailed buck deer, fleeing from dogs, broke its neck as it attempted to jump a ravine and escape, near the toll-gate entrance to the Cheyenne Mountain road, Frank Poley, game warden, reported. Poley estimates from 15 to 20 deer are killed annually by dogs in this district.

CATFISH WEIGHED 41 POUNDS

UHRICHSVILLE, O., (UP) — The season's record catch in Coshocton county was the shovelhead catfish, weighing 41 pounds and measuring 43 inches long, caught by Frank Young.

BOSSY PROUD OF TRIPLETS

MANGUM, Okla., (UP)—Bossy, four-year-old whiteface cow, was one of the proudest mothers in Oklahoma today. She is the mother of triplets and they are all doing nicely.

Americans Abroad Follow Football Scores Faithfully

LONDON, Oct. 2—(UP) — The return of intercollegiate football again presents the problem of securing results of Saturday games by Americans residing here. There are a number of sources through which details of contests played throughout the United States can be secured and most of them are fully utilized.

Paris editions of the New York Herald Tribune and the Chicago Tribune are brought to London daily by air mail. The Monday morning editions, and sometimes the Sunday carry scores and brief comments on the games.

Newspaper dealers sell more of these Paris editions during the fall months than any other time of the year except the boom tourist months.

People in charge of the reading rooms of the New York Herald Tribune, Chicago Daily News, Chicago Tribune and Christian Science Monitor, told a United Press representative that a number of American visitors and permanent residents of London visit their rooms during September, October and November to read the sporting pages of the publications.

The American Embassy, Chamber of Commerce and Consulate also keep file copies of United States newspapers. The American Club, just off Piccadilly, is also an excellent medium for football scores, tips, arguments and occasional wagers between rabid alumni.

Taking lunch in the American club one is almost certain to find a Yale alumnus giving a Princeton Tiger supporter a verbal defeat, while a Southern California Trojan will offer to back his team to defeat both Stanford and California. The discussion moves along quite friendly until a Notre Dame alumnus pushes his way into the crowd and shows money. He usually gets the floor with little opposition.

Even weekly publications such as Time are purchased and scanned for football gossip.

Distance and time appear to make little or no difference to the football fan who at 35 or 3 still thinks Illinois can take Chicago any Saturday and that Jim Thorpe is a better all-round player than any three 1931 All-American stars.

SKULL OF ANCIENT ANIMAL FOUND IN SOUTH DAKOTA

PIERRE, S. D., Oct. 2—(UP)—The skull of a Titantothere, one of the large tusked animals of prehistoric days, was brought here by A. M. Jackley, after completing a trip through the Bad Lands.

The skull measures three feet across, and the teeth are almost three inches square on the surface.

Jackley said that the find was made by Lester Crew, who lives in the Bad Lands. Together they spent several hours getting the skull out of its resting place in the rock formation. Jackley believes that the skeleton of the whole animal is imbedded at the spot where they were digging, as they went only to a depth great enough to excavate the skull.

Pheasant Breaks Windshield

LAS ANIMAS, Colo., (UP)—John Rice, 22, was severly cut when a presant flew into the windshield of his machine, breaking the glass. The pheasant was killed.

AUTO GOES 12 MILES PER HOUR

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., — A dashing Winton automobile—vintage of 1898—which "dashed" at the rate of 12 miles an hour "down hill," is the proud possession of John Mullaney, a local lawyer. The machine, a one cylinder engine in it, is believed the oldest existing automobile in Colorado.

Roast Turkey Served Early

LOVELAND, Colo., (UP)—Roast turkey was in vogue a bit prematurely at Ed Chasteen's ranch, all because a big gobbler got adventurous and flew to the high powered light wires near an electric "sub" station. But the gobbler had his revenge. He put the lights out in the community for several minutes.

NO CITY TAXES HERE

TRENTON Neb., UP)—Municipal light, water and ice plants here are so successful that this town of 864 people has no city taxes. Revenues from the utilities pay for the town's expenses.

Accident Causes Changing, Report To State Shows

Better Cars and Wider Roads Result in New Type of Accidents

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Sept. 2 —(UP)—Fashions change—even in automobile accidents.

In fact causes of accidents change so steadily it is extremely difficult to keep accurate statistical records according to Victor Killick, statistician of the state department of motor vehicles.

"A few years ago many accidents were attributed to mechanical defects. Now this classification is negligible and scarcely to be considered in a summary of causes," Killick stated.

"While improvements in materials and manufacturing methods have been responsible for this change, the manufacturers in evolving the closed-body type have decreased the vision range of the driver and this has been responsible for many accidents."

Killick pointed out, however, that there was a definite movement to fewer "blind spots" in automobile bodies as a safety measure.

The development of finer highways also has been responsible for new types of accidents. The wide roadways particularly have been fatal to pedestrians. Formerly a person might cross a narrow road with comparative safety. In doubling the width of the road, the danger has been increased many times according to statistics.

Despite these changes, speed still is the primary cause of most accidents in the opinion of E. Raymond Cato, chief of the California highway patrol.

"Persons may speak of the danger of the extremely cautious driver as far as traffic is concerned, but a person going 20 miles an hour is not likely to be killed if he is involved in an automobile crash. This is not true when an automobile is traveling 40 or 50 miles an hour."

Poultry Raising Is Million Dollar Industry in State

San Mateo County Producing More Than 45,000 Eggs Daily

By MELVIN LORD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, October 1—(UP)—California's poultry business may well be termed a "million dollar industry."

Leaders in the adoption of modern production methods, California poultrymen have established the state as one of the leading chicken and egg districts of the country according to state and federal authorities.

Federal figures on file here show that there were 17,467,248 chickens over three months old in the state last year, producing an average of 8,797,873 eggs. With the growth of the business the production may be said to be well in excess of this figure at the present time.

Of the total chicken "population" of California, San Mateo county had 97,831 chickens and was credited with a daily egg production of 45,-221.

According to state authorities, "commercial poultry farms in California obtain approximately 85 per cent of their total income from the egg production." This is a much higher ratio than is realized in other districts.

"As a result the trend has been towards the breeding of egg layers rather than meat producers. Statistical studies of the University of California indicate that there was an increase of 153 per cent in net profits between two groups of layers, one producing 122 eggs a year and the other 163 eggs. In other words, as production increases income over feed cost rises more rapidly."

State and federal studies show that there are five essential factors in the breeding for increased efficiency. These include early maturity, steady winter laying, high rate of production, elimination of broodiness and the persistency of production.

50 YEARS AGO

Times and Gazette Oct. 1, 1881

At midnight on Monday last a heartrending castastrophy took place at Hovious beach, a few miles south of Halfmoon Bay in this county, though the San Francisco Chronicle chooses for some inscrutable reason to locate it in Marin. At the hour mentioned the ship, Alice Buck, of New York, bound for Portland with a cargo of railroad iron, went ashore on Mussel Back rocks. It was not until about daybreak that any human being in the vicinity except the victims of the disaster, knew of the perilous position in which the shipwrecked crew were placed. A man who was out milking at the first streak of dawn, heard cries of distress from the wreck, and rode to Amesport, where the steamer Salinas was loading.

Captain Smith at once proceeded to the scene of danger, where he arrived barely in time to rescue six of the survivors, who were still clinging to the wreck, but nearly at their last grasp from fatigue and exposure.

The Salinas then steamed around in search of others who might be floating on spars or fragments of the wreckage, and in doing so found the captain about a quarter of a mile from the wreck, and rescued him. Eleven sailors were drowned, all the boats which were lowered being smashed in lowering or swamped in the heavy sea.

"The Show Off" Selected for Presentation Here by Dramatic Section

Following a tryout which involved the participation of approximately 100 Sequoia Union high school students, Betty Sheehan was selected by Claude van Patten, dramatic coach, to play the part of Clara, the clear headed, practical daughter of the Fisher family, in "The Show Off," a three-act comedy by George Kelly, to be given October 31.

"We were certainly pleased at the number of students who tried out for the parts," stated van Patten. "There were considerably more this year as compared to last as there were a number of lower classmen."

"'The Show Off' is not a wise cracking play," he added "but one in which humor is evident because of the truthfulness of the characterizations and the situations, which revolve around the actions of one character."

The entire cast will be published next week.

JUDGE DENIES

stances it would seem the testimony discussed it. Under the circumcf the petitioner was unbelievable and places her in such a position that no reliance can be placed upon her testimony. She claims or testified that James L. Flood is her father. The value of such testimony is apparent. Petitioner by assumption and inference sets up her claim upon that point not upon proof but by inference. She introduced a photograph of James L. Flood and there was also a photograph of Mr. Cannon shown by the evidence to be her father introduces and claims there is a resemblance between her and the Flood picture. Upon an examination of the pictures anycne can readily see that there is not the least resemblance of her in the Flood picture, but there is a resemblance of her in the Cannon picture. It reminds me that when I was teaching school in Maine in the sixties I had a nice six-year-old pupil and the father asked me one evening. Do you think daughter looks like me or her mother, and I replied: It is hard to tell, but her hair resembles yours. I afterwards learned that she was an adopted child and her father wore a wig. The facts surrounding her christening shows that James L. Flood was not her father. The fact of her gestatio, the time elapsed shows in a large degree that James L. Flood was not her father. The evidence of her admitted mother and her grandmother shows beyond any possibility of doubt that James L. Flood was not her father. The evidence shows that for more than a quarter of a century petitioner did not claim that she was the daughter of James L. Flood. In fact the evidence shows beyond question that James L. Flood never saw the petitioner's mother until petitioner was of the age of about three months. If James L. Flood had died a poor man this case would not have been before this court. But the money is there and she and her attorneys and advisers cannot be blamed in exerting their efforts to obtain some of it, but they cannot expect the aid of this court unless they present evidence to warrant it, and there is not a particle of evidence to wararnt such action. I will remark that this idea of distribution of wealth has engrossed the attention of thinking people in all ages of the world and in most countries. We who have not much of it would like to take it from the wealthy but there has been no plan devised as yet when this can be successfully done and I do not believe such a plan will ever be devised. It would be a peculiar world with none but us poor people. I know none of the Flood family and never spoke to any of them nor am I an associate of the wealthy people but, we poor people in this locality have to give much praise fo rthe aid they have extended to us. I might mention the names of Lick, Stanford, Hearst, De Young, Fleishacker and many others who have been helpful to all of us and our state. As a general thing people are honest. In over forty years trying cases in this county, this is the first case in which annonymous communications have come to me and of them I shall say nothing further than to say they did not come in behalf of the respondents words I believe the attorneys for the petition had any thing to do with them. Taking the evidence of the petitioner as true, it does not show that she is the daughter of James L. Flood. The evidence shows that on March 17, 1927, long after the death of James L. Flood, petitioner filed her petition herein claiming for the first time that James L. Flood was her father. The petitioner filed several other pettiions herein up to April of this year. Nothwithstanding the affidavits of petitioner's counsel, she could have taken up her petition at any time and this court would have gladly accommodated her. Her counsel in this court on April 16th of this year, showed in trying to formulate the pleadings he was not prepared for trial when he said, "Mr. Taaffe: we told her (Mrs. Gavin) that there was nothing new in the petition that the old petition had attempted to alleged that Mrs. Willet was her mother but that it had failed for certain legal reasons. Petitioner has known ever since she first appeared in this Court in 1927 that she could have a hearing herein as soon as an issue was formed notwithstanding the assertion of her counsel to the contrary. The trial in this case was set by counsel, notwithstanding the assertion of her counsel to the contrary. No witness for either side was in the judge's chambers, notwithstanding the assertion of the petitioner's counsel to the contrary. This court had nothing to do with the disposition of the witness in this case on either side notwithstanding the intimaion of petitioners counsel to the contrary. In over forty years on the bench here and the trial of thousands of cases this court has in no instance ever had anything to do with the disposition of witnesses appearing before this court. This court treated all the attorneys alike. The court did not have to say anything to Theodore J. Roche because he was action all the time. I might have urged speed upon J. J. Taaffe for good reasons. While this court does not blame counsel for petitioner to put forth every effort in their power to get their hands into the pot of gold seemingly existing and in which the evidence shows they are interested, yet they might at least have pursued a policy warranted by the facts. It would be a pleasure to in a systematic way review the evidence presented herein in detail, but other duties claim my attention. This case does not present any difficult question of law, but it does present a question of fact and upon that point the petitioner has wholly failed in her evidence. From the first California report to a case decided by our higher court this month, the higher court has upheld the right of the lower court to direct a verdict of the jury saying that "a directed verdict is proper whenever upon the whole evidence the judge would be compelled to set a contrary verdict aside as unsupprted by the evidence."

Motion for a new trial denied.

BUCK, Judge

Publisher Named Water Secretary

D. E. O'Keefe, well-known Redwood City newspaperman and political leader, was elected on Tuesday as secretary of the press committee of the California water investigation cmmission. The committee is composed of all publishers who supported Governor Rolph during the campaign, and is headed by former Governor Friend W. Richardson as president.

The organization of the press committee followed a meeting of the water resources committee. The meeting was also attended from this county by Manuel Francis, chairman of the county board of supervisors.

COUNTY GROWTH

This restriction of population expansion will not only make for the retention of land values but enormously add to their value.

The Redwood City-Palo Alto area is the largest and most desirable area to be reached first, coming down the peninsula from San Francisco. The combination of advantages arising out of its location assure the Belle Haven City properties early realization of profit to investors.

This is established by analyzing the statistics of the United States census of last year and comparing percentage growh of the different factors which, together with limited available land, must determine value.

The United States as a whole, increased 16.1% between 1920 and 1930, while the state of California increased 65.5%. The center of national population is for ever coming farther and farther westward, and the trend to California itself is remarkably increasing.

The restricted area of the city of San Francisco is largely responsible or the relatively small percentage of growth in the last ten years. It is in much the same position as New York City which however it exceeded in growth by 2.5% in 1930 over 1920. It is obvious therefore that it cannot be termed stagnant by this comparison.

San Mateo county has increased 110.3% and Santa Clara county 43.9%, showing where the overflow and influence of the metropolitan center has been accomodated.

In this last decade, the Redwood City-PaloAlto area has increased to the remarkable exent of 125.9% in population. The imminent developments which are now fully assured, are of such a major character as to vastly accentuate the upward curve in the next en years.

Redwood City itself has increased in thirty years from 1.653 to 8.957 and Palo Alto from 1.658 to 13.635. This is shown in the large volume of building in that period and which which last year was $2,255,000 in value. It is also significant that while the decrease in building in sixtyeight California cities in 1929-30 was twenty-five per cent, the decrease in this area was only one third of that, of 8.8%. Redwood City iself showing actually an increase.

San Mateo county is the only land connection to San Francisco and the only access free from tolls which can rightfully be termed as its suburban area. The growing economic independance of the East Bay will increasingly exclude it from the designation of suburban San Francisco.

In any case these figures abundantly show that all the three sections of population which go to make up the metropolitan area of San Francisco are developing at a rate very favorable in contrast with eastern and middle-west cities. This rate of increase is not subnormal but conservative enough to show that it is in ratio with the other factors of development. The proof of all-round development is reassuring as to the continued prosperity and progress of the bay region whether generally or locally.

The strategic location of the new Western Pacific Railroad route into San Francisco, the new Palo Alto Park lands on San Francisco Bay, the growth of industry attendant on the Redwood City harbor improvements, the new and enormously important Bay Shore highway all bring the probabilities of this district unquestionably into the more definite phase of realities.

Inquest Held for Clyde McGovern

An inquest was held in San Mateo Wednesday by Dr. J. C. McGovern, San Mateo county coroner, into the death of his nephew, Clyde McGovern, who was struck by a hit run driver on the Bayshore road early Sunday morning.

Young McGovern was one of a party of six young people who were plowed into by a hit-run when they stopped with their three motorcycles beside the Bayshore road when one of the motorcycles developed engine trouble. The machine which struck the party, injuring four members and killing McGovern was said to be one of two which were racing madly down the road, swerving from side to side, and going at a rate of about 70 miles an hour toward San Francisco. All three motorcycles were wrecked, and McGovern, who was astride his machine was thrown a distance of about 40 feet, landing on his head on the pavement.

The jury found that he came to his death by reason of a fractured skull when hit by a hit-run driver on the Bayshore highway.

The same jury heard the evidence connected with the death of J. S. Lafferty, washing machine salesman, who was killed on September 19, on El Camino Real in San Mateo when his car was struck by one driven by Mrs. Otto Schulte, wife of a San Francisco banker. Lafferty also came to his death as the result of a fracture of the skull.

The coroner and the sheriff of this county and police officers of the peninsula are continueing the search for the driver of the hit-run car which crashed in the group of the Bayshore highway. Some clews were found at the scene of the tragedy, and these are now being traced.

In addition to McGovern, those struck and injured were Miss Vernie McDiarmid, 20, of this city, fiance of McGovern; Ray Eddy, Elmer Sheehan and Hal Dahlan. Miss McDiarmid was the most serious injured, having suffered a broken jaw and other injuries. She is now at the Community hospital at Beresford.

S. P. To Offer Bargain Rate

The indefatigable "iron horses" stabled in Southern Pacific roundhouses throughout six western states were being groomed again today in readiness for another widespread offering of "cent-a-mile" train rides on October 9, 10 and 11.

Announcement to this effect was made here today by H. H. Eilers, agent for the railroad, who pointed out that a Sunday sale date is to be featured for the first time in connection with the company's so called "dollar day" merchandising of train travel.

In the past, all penny-a-mile excursions have been authorized to start on Thursday, Friday or Saturday, it was emphasized. Inclusion of Sunday, October 11, in the three-day offering of bargain fares beginning Friday, October 9, is expected to add greatly to the ever-growing popularity of this kind of rail transportation.

Final return limit for the forthcoming excursions will be Monday, October 19 Eilers stated giving travelers an 11-day outing from the first date of sale including Columbus Day October 12. The tickets will be accepted on all trains coach or Pullman for travel between all points on the company's Pacific Lines, extending from San Francisco to Ogden and from Portland to El Paso. Salt Lake City will also be covered by the offer, according to the announcement.

Good use of the low-fare tickets is expected to be made by football fans attending games in many parts of the West. The Stanford-Minnesota contest at Palo Alto, University of Southern California-Washington State at Los Angeles, and the University of California-Olympic Club game at Berkeley are among the leading attractions on the collegiate calendar for Saturday, October 10.

Bridgeport—State Highway No. 23 to be routed through this city.

Rancho Santa Fe—A. A. Tennyson received $16,636 contract for erection of one-story school building here.

Funeral Held for Former Resident

Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon for Mrs. Benjamin Myer, former pioneer resident of Redwood City, who passed away in San Francisco Tuesday. Interment was in the family plot in Union cemetery here.

Mrs. Myer will be best remembered by the older residents of Redwood City as the former wife of Captain Anderson, who ran a fleet of sloops between Redwood City and San Francisco in the early days, carrying lumber and shingles. The boats docked here at the old wharves of the Hanson Lumber Co., later the Tacoma Mill Co., and located at the end of Main street. Captain Anderson was a brother of Mrs. Chris Hynding, the mother of Mrs. Cecelia Graves of this city. He passed away some years ago and the widow married Benjamin Myer. The latter also passed away and Mrs. Myer is survived by a daughter only, Mrs. Helena Schuld of San Francisco.

The Jas. Crowe Co. was in charge of the services here.
